The BABES in the WOOD.

ONE OF
R. CAL-
DECOTT'S
PICTURE
BOOKS

Frederick Warne and Co.

SORE SICKE THEY WERE
AND LIKE TO DYE

The
BABES IN THE WOOD.

NOW ponder well, you parents deare,
These wordes which I shall write;
A doleful story you shall heare,
In time brought forth to light.

A gentleman of good account
In Norfolke dwelt of late,
Who did in honour far surmount
Most men of his estate.

Sore sicke he was, and like to dye,
No helpe his life could save;
His wife by him as sicke did lye,
And both possest one grave.

No love between these two was lost,
Each was to other kinde;
In love they liv'd, in love they dyed,
And left two babes behinde:

The one a fine and pretty boy,
Not passing three yeares olde;
The other a girl more young than he
And fram'd in beautye's molde.

The father left his little son,
As plainlye doth appeare,
When he to perfect age should come,
Three hundred poundes a yeare.

And to his little daughter Jane
Five hundred poundes in gold,
To be paid downe on marriage-day,
Which might not be controll'd:

But if the children chanced to dye,
Ere they to age should come,
Their uncle should possesse their wealth;
For so the wille did run.

NOW, BROTHER, said the dying man, LOOK TO MY CHILDREN DEARE.

"Now, brother," said the dying man,
"Look to my children deare;
Be good unto my boy and girl,
No friendes else have they here:

"To God and you I do commend
My children deare this daye;
But little while be sure we have
Within this world to staye.

"You must be father and mother both,
And uncle all in one;
God knowes what will become of them,
When I am dead and gone."

With that bespake their mother deare :
" O brother kinde," quoth shee,
" You are the man must bring our babes
To wealth or miserie :

“And if you keep them carefully,
Then God will you reward;
But if you otherwise should deal,
God will your deedes regard.”

SMALL

WITH LIPES AS COLD AS ANY STONE, THEY KIST THE CHILDREN

With lippes as cold as any stone,
They kist the children small :
“ God bless you both, my children deare ; ”
With that the teares did fall.

These speeches then their brother spake
To this sicke couple there:
“The keeping of your little ones,
Sweet sister, do not feare:

“God never prosper me nor mine,
Nor aught else that I have,
If I do wrong your children deare,
When you are layd in grave.”

THEIR PARENTS BEING DEAD & GONE, THE CHILDREN HOME HE TAKES.

The parents being dead and gone.
The children home he takes,
And bringes them straite unto his house,
Where much of them he makes.

He had not kept these pretty babes
A twelvemonth and a daye,
But, for their wealth, he did devise
To make them both awaye.

He bargain'd with two ruffians strong,
Which were of furious mood,
That they should take the children young,
And slaye them in a wood.

He told his wife an artful tale,
He would the children send
To be brought up in faire London,
With one that was his friend

Away then went those pretty babes
Rejoycing at that tide,
Rejoycing with a merry minde,
They should on cock-horse ride

AWAY THEN WENT THE PRETTY BABES
REJOYCEING AT THAT TIDE

They prate and prattle pleasantly
As they rode on the waye,
To those that should their butchers be,
And work their lives' decaye:

So that the pretty speeche they had,
Made murderers' heart relent;
And they that undertooke the deed,
Full sore did now repent.

Yet one of them, more hard of heart,
Did vow to do his charge,
Because the wretch, that hired him,
Had paid him very large

The other would not agree thereto,
So here they fell to strife;
With one another they did fight,
About the children's life:

And he that was of mildest mood,
Did slaye the other there,
Within an unfrequented wood,
Where babes did quake for feare!

AND HE
THAT WAS OF MILDEST
MOOD

DID SLAYE THE OTHER THERE

He took the children by the hand,
While teares stood in their eye,
And bade them come and go with him,
And look they did not cry:

And two long miles he ledd them on,
While they for food complaine:
“Stay here,” quoth he, “I’ll bring ye bread,
When I come back againe.”

These pretty babes, with hand in hand,
Went wandering up and downe;

But never more they sawe the man
Approaching from the town.

Their prettye lippes with blackberries
Were all besmear'd and dyed;

And when they sawe the darksome night,
They sat them downe and cryed.

Thus wandered these two prettye babes,
Till death did end their grief;
In one another's armes they dyed,
As babes wanting relief.

No burial these pretty babes
Of any man receives,

Till Robin-redbreast painfully
Did cover them with leaves.

And now the heavy wrathe of God upon their uncle fell;
Yea, fearfull friends did haunt his house, his conscience left
in hell:

His barnes were fired, his goodes consum'd, his landes were barren made
His cattle dyed within the field, and nothing with him stayd.

And in a voyage to Portugal, two of his sonnes did dye;
And to conclude, himself was brought to want and miserye:

He pawn'd and mortgaged all his land ere seven years came about;
And now at length this wicked act did by this means come out:

The yellowe, that did take in hand these children for to kill,
Was for a robbery judged to dye,--(such was God's blessed will;)

Who did confess the very truth, as here has been displayed:
Their uncle having dyed in goal, where he for debt was layd.

You that executors be made, and overseers are,
Of children that be fatherless, and infants milde and meeke;

Take you example by this thing, and yield to each his right,
Lest God with such like miserye your wicked minde requite.
